

Seeking a New Director for the School of Natural Resources at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville

- UT is Tennessee's flagship public land-grant university, thriving in academics and athletics.
- The School of Natural Resources was recently elevated to School status, laying a foundation for scholarly growth and enhanced leadership in teaching, research, and Extension.
- Public lands and waters surround the campus in a region recognized as a biodiversity hotspot.
- Knoxville, known as the Scruffy City, boasts its own rich culture along with highly-rated public schools and an urban wilderness.
- The Great Smoky Mountains National Park, Asheville, Nashville, and Atlanta are within easy driving distance.

Apply today and come work with us to deliver statewide, nationally, and internationally recognized programs!

